FOUNDRY LEADS CHURCH LEAGUE

Calvary and Sixth Neck-and-Neck for Second Honor.

FRYE IS BEST BACKSTOP

Ballenger, of Sixth, Tops List of First Sackers, With No Errors-Cy Mac-Donald Leads Third Basemen.

The gap between Foundry and Ninth in team standing in the Sunday school League stands out as prominently in the fielding averages, Foundry leading with .933, and the trailers bringing up the rear over 100 points behind. Calvary and Sixth are running neck and neck for second honors.

Frye, of the Metropolitans, leads the backstops, and Ballenger is the only regular first-sacker without an error. Kinney, of Foundry; Angus MacDonald. of Sixth, and Lord, Calvary, lead in their respective positions at second, third, and short. The averages of those who have played in less than three games are not given.

Rival of Beldame.

Artful Only Classy Horse in Next Big Handicap-Cella Not Blackballed by Mets.

By J. S. A. MACDONALD.

As I perdicted last week, the twentieth running or the Brocklyn Handicap fell to an outsider and a selling plater—the story of Grapple and the Metropolitan Handicap over again.

J. W. Fuller, of Mineral Springs. Texas, won the great handicap with his five-year-old mare Tokalon, a 25-to-1 shot, and a daughter of the once famous Tammany, the pride and cherished thoroughbread of Marcus Daiy, of Montana, when that big-hearted Irishman lived and fussed over his Bitter Root farm in the Butte country.

POOR BOSTON finish many a sage of the turf said: and from now on that famous and most "Well, here is another Westerner come beloved horse race of the average racehere to make good right on our own goer hereabouts will hold his or her at-"Well, here is another Westerner come here to make good right on our own dump." So it would seem. Tokalon had not been duly rated, albeit she is nothing more than a selling plater, for the sharps looked a: Fuller in his negligect shirt, his wide-spreading sombrero, his frowsy-headed jockey, Bedell, from the Lone Star State, and then at his mare, Tokalon, who had just been beaten by Pantouffe, Tiptoe, and Subtle, at Belmont Park four days before the running of the Brooklyn Handicap.

"Good-night; nothing doing," was the sense of the racing public hereabouts whenever Takalon found a champion of her chances in the $20,000 handicap. However, Tokalon was a fair mare when look had to go back to those days in his handicaping researches to give this off spril, of old Tammany a chance in the Spril, of old Tammany a chance in the Spril, of old Tammany a chance in the Tokalon had won an exceptionally good race at Harlem, Chicago, two years ago, talk of bringing her East to go against Beldame, then the reigning queen of the metropolitan turf, was the lone of the metropolitan turf, was the local scene of racing activity in the lo

Quite a stir has arisen over the coming to the local scene of racing activity ager had Cella's presence here on Broo. lyn Handicap day become known, Merry Lark, but was beaten soundly. So far, only two professional operators in addition to J. W. Fuller, bet on Tokalon, They were "Charlie" Rowe, mentor of Jockey Sewell and owner of Colonial Girl, and Louis Cella, the Missouri turf magnate.

Their wagers were all small and of the "sympathy" variety. Atter the race Rowe said: "Well, she was as good as Colonial Girl two years ago, and I thought she had a chance." Bedell quite won his spurs in taking down the Brooklyn Handicap and it will be in order for the youngster to go along and make fame and fortune for hisself.

A Serge That Is Right

HILE it takes designing and skill of no mean order to produce the proper hang and set to heavy-weight togs, the summer-time fabrics require a still higher order of designing ability, and a finer skill in tailoring.

The Bieber-Kaufman Serges of the summer nineteen-six are the swaggerest garments of the sort it has ever been our good fortune to show. The fabrics are of a more serviceable texture, and moulding has been executed to a better degree-everything has been done to make them the finest of ready-to-wear togs.

The tailoring of all Bieber-Kaufman Serges is distinguished by painstaking excellence of detail that alone can give to these garments their fine precision of fit and the stability to held their shapeliness to the end.

Single and double breasted-ten, twelve-fifty and fifteen dollars.
